Village Quiz 2025

The evening of 20th September saw almost 100 people fill the Community Centre for the annual village quiz. This is an event held jointly by the Flackwell Heath Community and Residents' Associations. 13 teams of up to 8 people competed, with the quizmaster encouraging healthy team rivalry by asking if anyone could beat the team from Christ Church who had won for the last two years. (The answer was yes!)

And a difficult question to get you thinking – 'What food is thrown at an annual event in Lincolnshire?' If you know the answer, perhaps you should be at next year's village quiz. Very few – if any – knew it at this year's quiz.

Each round was named as vaguely as ever to make it difficult to choose which round to play your joker (meaning double points). The Cryptic Challenge, where all the answers were animals, was certainly a challenge for many. 'Code for Shetland supporter?' Any answers?

'Sounds of the Wild' turned out to be a music round where all the answers, whether the song or the group, involved the name of a bird, flower or animal. Our team learned the hard way that was not the round to play your joker on.

The delicious meal was supplied by Richard Chalmers (despite the fact that he was also catering for the 25th anniversary of Oasis all over the weekend at Christ Church) – a choice of Sweet and Sour Chicken or Chilli – followed by a great choice of desserts – none designed for weight watchers! But we had to work while eating as there were flags to recognise, and naming actors and the part they were playing in the photo.

The quizmaster was, as usual, Craig Lewis, ably assisted by his wife Linda and friend Monica. How does Craig manage to come up with different ideas each year for different rounds and questions? Is he already thinking of next year?? Craig, Linda and Monica – thank you – you did a fantastic job and gave everyone a lot of fun.

Thank you also to Chris Cramer and Chris Thomas of the Community Association who worked incredibly hard for the event.

When the winners were announced, the team called Second Place (Tim Andrews, Andy Walker, George Stonhill, Mark Gowland, Phil Wilkinson, Sarah Gregory, Bob Gregory and Richard Powell) won. And in second place was the team called 'And in first place..'. Confusing!

Bowling Green Needs Maintenance

At a recent meeting, members of the Flackwell Heath Bowls Club were advised of a problem with the ditch that surrounds the bowling green. Due to age, the ditch surrounds have started to fail and the whole perimeter needs digging out and new ditch section pieces installed. The work has to be done by hand and is therefore very labour-intensive, costing £37000. A fund-raising team has been working hard and secured a £2500 grant from the Mobbs Trust and a donation of £500 from the FHRA. Pauline Howard from the Repair Cafe has promised to support funds for a year. Club members have been asked to sponsor sections of the ditch at £107 per 1.1 metre section, and this has raised a further £3928 as at 15 September.

The club, which has 70 members, is continuing to raise funds via skittles evenings, quiz nights and gala days.

Skittles evenings are popular and the club can accommodate parties of between 24 and 36 people at a cost of only £20 a head, which includes a fish and chip supper. There's a licensed bar with competitive prices and, better still, members of the club run the competition for you! If you would like to get a group together from your club, workplace or family, Dave Fowler can be contacted via email, davefowler424@gmail.com.

Dave would love to hear from anyone who would like to sponsor the ditch renovations, or maybe able to help with suggestions of who to approach for grants etc. Craig Lewis

Koelreuteria paniculata, Pride of India, Golden Rain Tree

In flower, June 26, 2025

This tree can be found growing in the grass verge on Whitepit Lane between Northern Woods and Philip Drive. It is somewhat unusual to find this species outside large gardens and arboreta, so it would be interesting to learn how it came to be here, on what is now council land.

Despite its common name, it comes originally from China, and is now naturalised in Korea and Japan. A medium sized, elegant tree, growing up to 14m or so tall in this country. The leaves are large (up to 45cm) and 'pinnate', that is the leaf consists of 10-13 leaflets, like an ash or walnut tree. It will grow on most soil types and is drought tolerant, but prefers full sun (though this specimen seems to be coping with its north-east facing aspect).

Dramatic when in flower in July or August; large numbers of bunches ('panicles') up to 30cm long containing masses of bright yellow flowers hang from the branches especially in warm summers. The fruits which follow are equally spectacular: papery bladders like Chinese lanterns 2-3cm in diameter, which start green and then fade through yellow to pink, and in the right conditions scarlet. Each contains three black pea-sized seeds, and they persist on the tree for most of the winter.

Toilet Trouble

On the afternoon of Sunday, the 7th of September, the fire brigade was called to the Recreation Ground, not to put out a fire but to effect a rescue from the toilet block. When his friends couldn't open the door, a young man dialled 999 and the fire brigade arrived swiftly, removing the door to release them. The toilet was out of action on the Monday, but CWPC moved swiftly and it was back in use on Tuesday.

Here in the vicarage, we enjoyed watching Destination X on BBC1 over the summer. If you didn’t see it, the premise of the show is that a group of people are put on a bus and driven around Europe, and they have to work out where they are. Simple enough, except for the fact that they can’t see out of the bus windows, and when they are allowed out, they have to put on ‘X Goggles’ – fancy blindfolds that hide their location.

Through a series of clues and snatched reveals of what’s around them, the contestants have to mark where they think they are on a map at the end of each episode. The furthest away from their location leaves the bus, and the whole thing carried on until there was a winner. It was good, gentle entertainment, with a little bit of a geography quiz thrown in. What’s not to like?

Watching Destination X got me thinking about journeys. There are the journeys we take on a day-to-day basis: to see family or friends, or go to work, or go on holiday, or to an appointment. Some journeys are hugely fun and hugely memorable, while others are mundane and deeply forgettable. I remember once driving through the middle of the USA and for hours on end all we saw were fields and dust. That wasn’t especially memorable (although given I still remember it, perhaps it left more of an impression than I give it credit for).

But then there are the deeper journeys we’re all on, what we might somewhat grandly call the journey of life. On each journey there are different companions to go with us, different terrains to cross, and different stops along the way. Sometimes we know exactly where we are and where we’re going, but more often, like those in the Destination X bus, we don’t know where we are or where we’re headed.

It can feel hard when we’re in those moments. Most of us like to know where we are. But one thing I’ve learnt over the years is that we’re often not alone: there are plenty of others around us who are feeling the same way. It’s what brings us together: a shared sense of moving forward alongside each other, even if we aren’t entirely sure where we’re headed.

In church we often talk about the journey that we are all on. It’s one of the reasons we run things like our Alpha Course, which starts this October. It’s not about finding all the right answers so much as finding a space where we can bring our questions and uncertainties and discover fellow travellers with which to explore them. If it sounds like something you’d be interested in, just get in touch. We’d love to welcome you.

That’s not the only way you can find companionship on the journey you’re on. I’d love to invite you to join us for one of our services on Sundays, especially in the morning. Our 9am service is quiet and reflective, and our 10.30am service is informal and ideal for families. Every person you’ll meet is a fellow traveller and has experience of the joys and hardships of life’s highway. We can’t promise to tell you exactly where you’re going, but it would be a joy to walk alongside you.

Go gently,

James Dwyer, Vicar of Flackwell Heath

Morning WI

We had an informative morning seeing wonderful photographs of mainly African wildlife taken by Tom Way. His favourite workplace is in Equatorial Africa. Ideally his aim is to capture the character of an animal and, perhaps more unusually these days, he often uses black and white film because he can get more detail in the picture.

His enthusiasm and general presentation came across well, we heard every word (not always the case) and, despite the many TV wildlife programmes available, his personal experiences certainly held our attention. I think our members gave Tom 10/10. The following week he was going off to Namibia.

In October we have our Annual Meeting when we elect the new committee.

Brenda Aldridge

(Morning WI meets on 1st Wednesdays at 9.30am in the Sarney Room at the Community Centre.)

Evening WI

It's amazing how many people volunteer to help people. Mike Prager gave us a very interesting talk about the people who are in the RNLI. It's been in existence for over 201 years and counting. These volunteers risk their own lives going to sea to save people in trouble all round our coast. There are no subsidies from the State for all the equipment and boats. It's by public donations and Mike had plenty of statistics to show where our gifts are spent to ensure they can do this work efficiently and safely.

For the talk this month we will hear from another volunteer, one of our members, Ruth Walne. She will be telling us about Madagascar, including her role on one of several International non-profit Mercy ships on which she has volunteered. The Mercy ships are 'hospital' vessels that are kitted out with medical equipment and theatres and which go to countries where there is no access to safe, affordable surgery. Come and join us to hear more. We meet on 2nd Thursdays at 7.15pm in the Sarney Room.

Travelling by Bus

Back in the not-so-swinging sixties, London Transport published a wonderful little book entitled 'Country Walks'. As students living in London, we would meet at Victoria Coach Station on a Saturday morning and take a Green Line bus into 'the country'. With all the confidence of youth, we would set off to Amersham, Windsor, or the Surrey hills to walk 10 miles or so without GPS, mobile phone, walking boots, or any other equipment deemed necessary these days.

Nearly 60 years and the M40 later, things have changed. But if you are in no special hurry and fancy an outing without the hassle of traffic and parking problems, it is still quite possible to go by bus. If you have a bus pass then it's also free.

Carousel updated their timetables at the start of September and below are a few possibilities.

Things can change and paper timetables are becoming a thing of the past, so if you can download the app it will make things easier. At time of writing (mid September) all the buses mentioned below run at least hourly until early evening.

If your walking is limited, a simple outing could include a ride into Bourne End on the 36 and a flat walk along the river. Or, for the slightly more energetic, a walk over the fields taking the bus back to save climbing up the hill.

Changing to a 37 bus at Bourne End station (hourly Monday to Saturday) will take you on to Cookham, Maidenhead and Windsor. On a Sunday only it is possible to catch the 37B outside the Community Centre and go all the way to Windsor without changing.

Feeling more adventurous? Then travel to Wycombe bus station and choose from a number of possibilities without a further change.

Marlow, Henley: the 850 runs frequently on weekdays.

Twyford, Reading: the 850 continues half-hourly daily (approx 1.5 hours to Reading).

Amersham, Chesham: use the 105 (not Sundays), or investigate the frequent 1/1A/1B (all slightly different routes) some of which continue to Hemel Hempstead (journey time 1.5 hours).

Great Missenden, Amersham: the 41 is a different route to Amersham via Great Missenden (not Sundays).

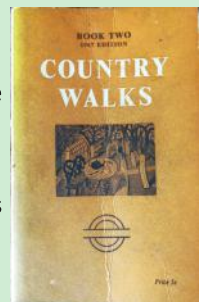

Slough: the 103.

Beaconsfield, the Chalfonts, Gerrards Cross and Uxbridge: use the 104 (not Sundays, 1 hour 20 minutes to Uxbridge).

Stories of your travels welcome.

PS: Serendipitously, we note that this month's library article is publicising local walking maps. Go for it!

On the Allotments

The annual allotment BBQ, organised jointly by the Flackwell Heath Allotment Association and Chepping Wycombe Parish Council, was held on Saturday, 30th August, and this year it didn't rain! Allotment chairman, Jonathan Walne, needed a little assistance getting the BBQ going, but he proved a dab hand at cooking burgers and sausages, which were simply delicious. The burgers and sausages were kindly provided by CWPC.

Councillor Luca Webb, Open Spaces Chairman, was on hand to announce the winners of the annual allotment competition. Luca was very quick to say that he was not one of the judges, a ploy he's learned from erstwhile chairman, Cllr Les Willis, to ensure he gets out alive!

Judging from the applause, this year's winner, Linda Lewis, was a popular choice with the judges commenting, "A beautiful, well-presented garden with fantastic all-round appeal. Excellent use of space and planting, a truly stunning plot."

Those of you who have watched Clarkson's Farm will know that the weather plays an important part in the growing cycle. With it being so dry and hot this year, allotment holders had to water daily to ensure success. Those who did considered it had been a pretty good growing year overall, with a lot of crops arriving earlier than normal. Definitely better than last year, when it was cold and wet and slugs were having a field day eating everything in sight.

If you're thinking of taking on an allotment, you can contact CWPC and ask to be added to the waiting list.

LOCAL PLAN for Buckinghamshire
Shaping the future together

The first consultation for the Draft Buckinghamshire Local Plan is now open. The consultation is running from the 17 September for 6 weeks (closing on the 29 October) and can be found on the Council website. Although at this stage no specific sites have been mentioned, there are many aspects to the plan which people may like to comment on.

A lot of residents will remember the last time a Local Plan was out for consultation. This was the Wycombe Local Plan before the District Councils merged to create the Unitary Authority (2020). The Draft Wycombe Local Plan (launched June 2016) and then following consultation of the final version, was adopted in 2019. Local plans are the whole structure and future to planned build areas of housing and economic sites and are crucially important to how the future of our areas are shaped.

The starting point to note is that national housing targets mean Buckinghamshire is looking to build circa 95,500 homes over the plan period (20 years). This is a huge commitment and undertaking and will affect everywhere within the county. This first version of the draft plan is to establish the approach for areas of growth, infrastructure and, of course, housing.

Do try to find an opportunity to look through the local plan. We understand there will be opportunity to ask question and see presentations although these have not yet been announced at time of writing.

It's a Classic

When I saw Le Mans stickers adhered to my neighbour Matt Bingle's old Ford Fiesta, I was intrigued. The car has been in his wife Sophie's family since it was purchased from Bristol Street Motors in Birmingham in 1995. Matt was three at the time. It's been maintained by Matt and his brother-in-law and somehow manages to scrape through an MOT each year. Until Matt acquired it the car had been used to a weekly shopping run to Waitrose, accumulating a mere 500 miles per annum. So was he really going to take it to Le Mans? It transpired that it was all part of a friend's stag do to the Le Mans Classic Car Event held between the 3rd and 6th July. Matt duly set off and joined the party, travelling in convoy with a Jag and a Porsche to the ferry port at Poole. Things started to go a little pear-shaped at Poole when the Jag packed in and had to be abandoned.

Undeterred, the group drove onto the ferry for the four-and-a-half-hour crossing to Cherbourg, followed by a four-hour drive to their allotted campsite.

Whilst at the rally, they visited nearby Arnage, where enthusiasts meet and show off their classic cars, encouraged to do daft things like revving engines, hooting horns, and seeing how many people they can fit in the car. Matt says the locals are most excited by the most basic and boring of cars; thus, the Fiesta completely outclassed all the supercars!

All too soon it was time to journey home, and guess what? The Porsche conked out and had to be left in France. Matt and his Fiesta, now a little fuller, made it all the way home without incident. Inspired by his trip, Matt has subsequently taken the car to the "Festival of the Unexceptional" held at Grimsthorpe Castle, near Bourne, which caters for cars from the 1960s through to the 2000s. Once a common sight on the road, Matt's Fiesta Mistral 1.3 is one of only 16 still licensed in the UK. I'm wondering if Matt will ever end up selling his car - he's recently been moved onto the rostrum at the Bourne End Auction House, so he's in the right place!
